Roadmap to Disciplemaking

November 10, 2008
9:00am – 3:00 pm

Jesus said, “as you are going, make disciples” (Matthew 28:19). This introduction to what we know as the Great Commission, contains two important charges to us who are serving in His name. First is the issue of our lives as being on a journey. This entails both movement and progress. Second, is the charge to make disciples. This involves process and transformation.

However, integrating this expectation of Jesus into our pastoral ministries is not an easy task. As you know, any journey can be beset by vehicle breakdowns, roadblocks, detours, and even getting stuck in the mud. Also, the transformation process entails change which has a built in resistance within the human spirit.

In our time together we hope to enlighten the issue of the nature of our journey, what is our current location and condition, where exactly are we going, what is our roadmap, and how do we overcome some of the pitfalls that impede us from obtaining our destination? We also will be focusing on what kind of finished product we are seeking to develop in our roadmap to disciplemaking. What will be the form and function of our finished product? Did Jesus expect this task to be done by a limited number of professionals, or did he expect a reproducing disciple as the goal of the Great Commission.

We are blessed have the leadership of Bishop Ron Ramsey, Rev. Pat Jones, Director of Healthy Church Ministries, and the Rev. Jeff Bleijerveld, Director of Global Ministries. All three leaders serve the larger Church out of the headquarters of the Church of the United Brethren in Christ, USA.
